

Initial Project Description

Project Description: Plannit is a website that aims to bring people together online, and in-person. Users will be able to create or join a party centered around a specific activity. Some examples of typical users would be students, gamers, and athletes. For example, if a student would like to create a study session for calculus 1, the student can create a public post stating a time and place(if applicable) where the event will occur. When users create or join an event, they will receive a notification confirming their action. Users searching to join events will be able to sort the postings through a variety of ways, such as by most recent, location, group size, and whether the event is in-person or online. Users who choose to join events will click a button to join the event, which will then reveal more information about the event, such as how to contact the host.
